

A photograph of a grand, historic library interior. The space is filled with rows of wooden study tables, each accompanied by a green lamp. Bookshelves line the walls, and large arched windows with decorative glass patterns allow natural light to enter. The architecture is classical, with high ceilings and ornate details. The overall atmosphere is quiet and scholarly.

My Journey

Intellectual Reform

"Muslim civilisation's accent was not because of the challenge of a geographical or climatic factor as suggested in Toynbee's theory or the dual factors of economics and means of production in the theory of Marx. Instead, it was born at the instant the SPIRIT DESCENDED IN GHAR HIRA". Malek Bennabi (The Conditions of the Renaissance).

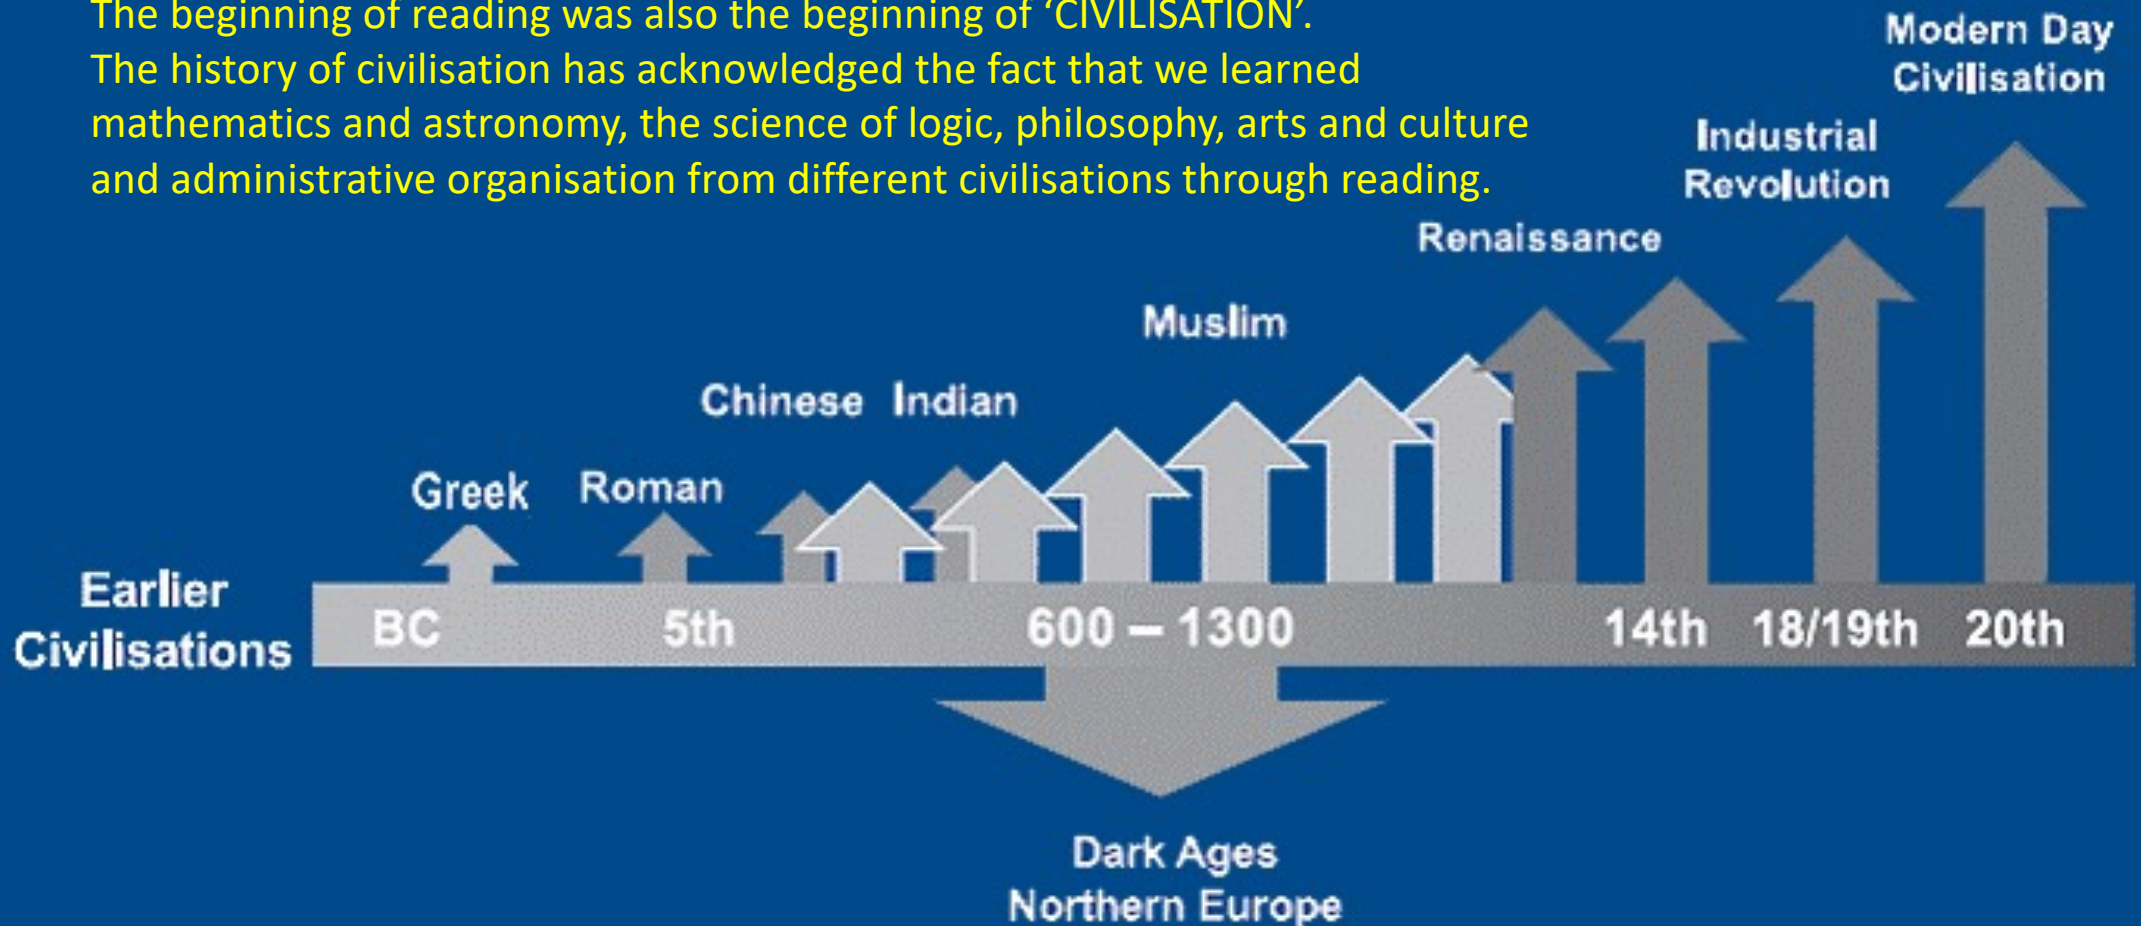

The ink of the scholars is weighed on Judgment Day and the blood of the martyrs, and the ink of the scholars outweighs the blood of the martyrs.

Al-Jāmi' as Saghīr, Hadith 14582

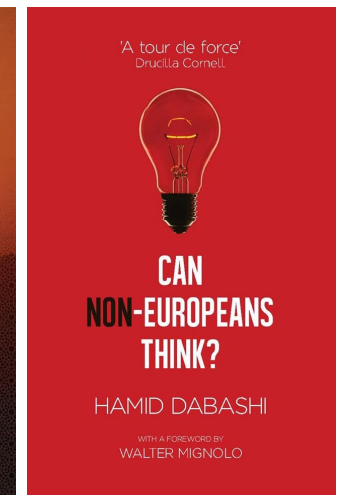

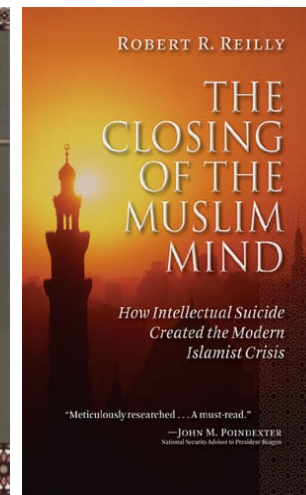

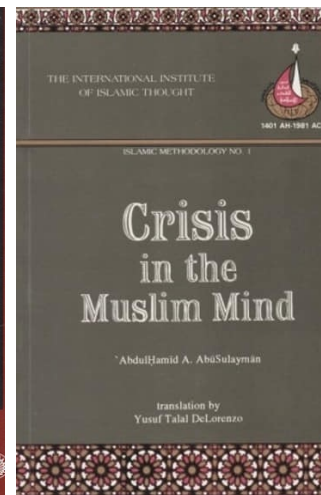

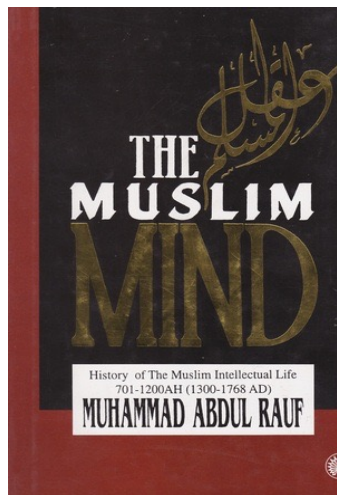

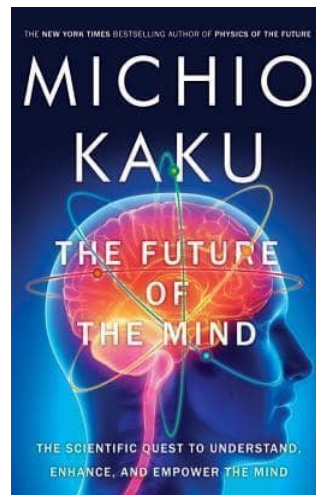

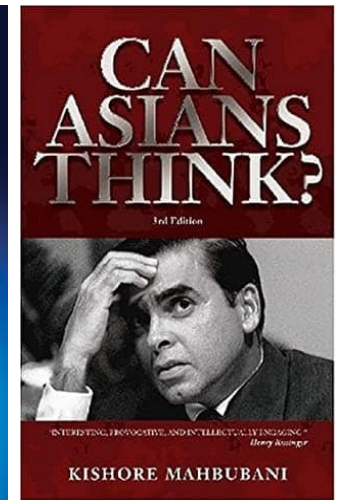

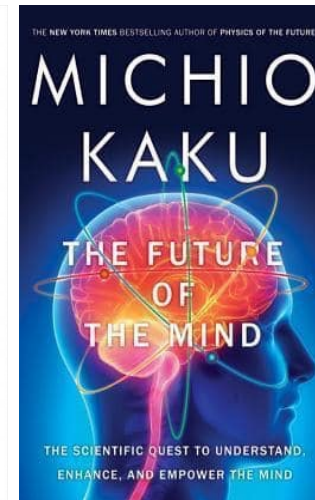

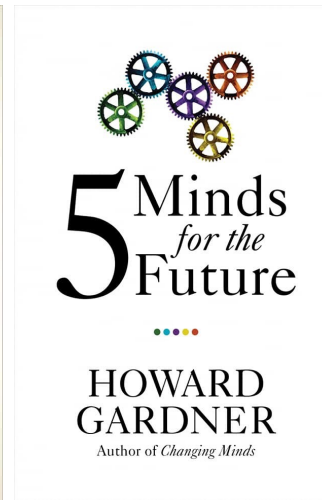

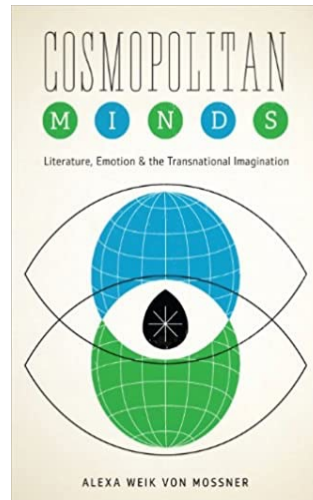

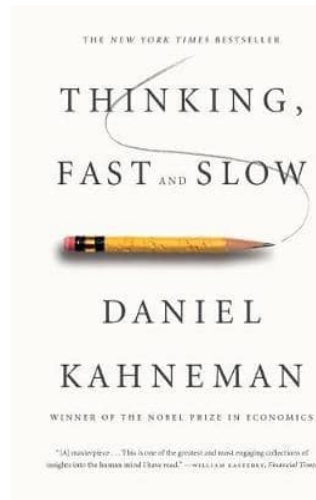

History of Science and Civilisation as should be taught:

The beginning of reading was also the beginning of 'CIVILISATION'.

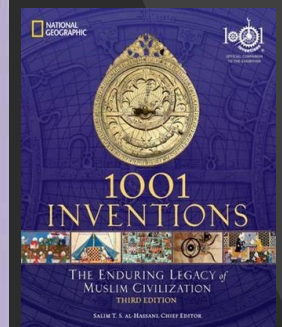

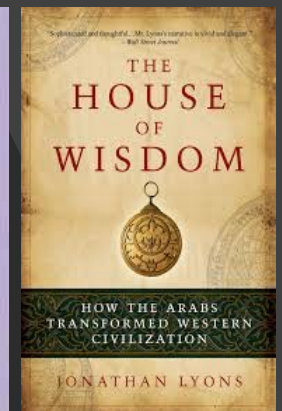

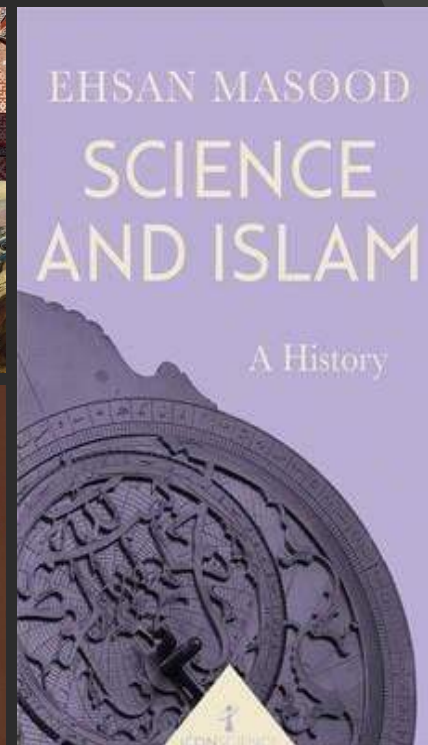

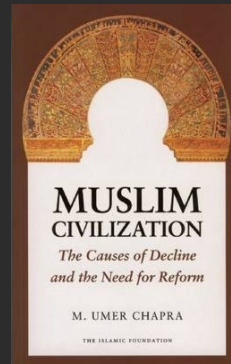

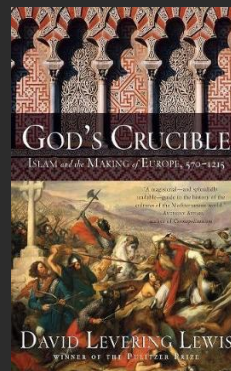

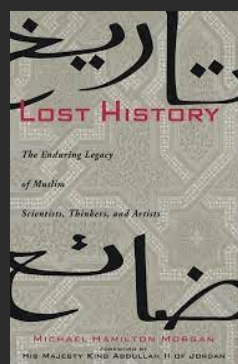

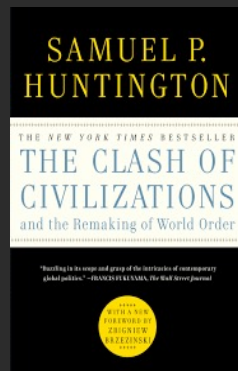

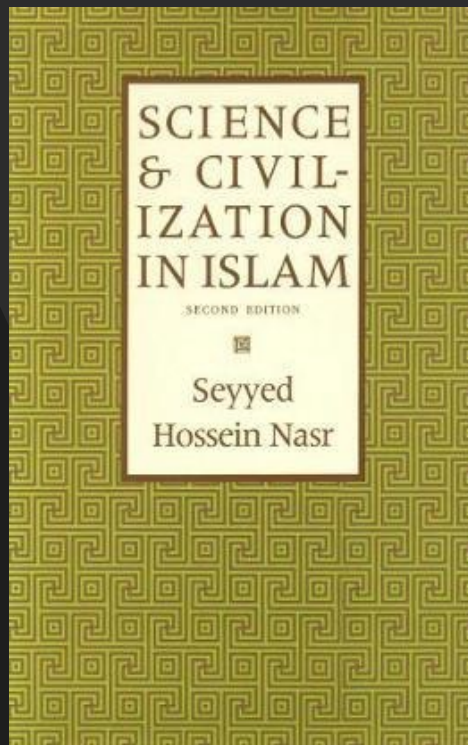

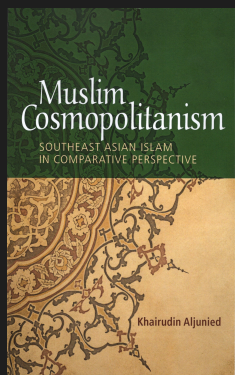

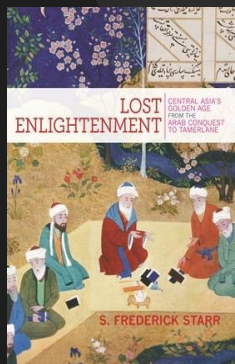

The history of civilisation has acknowledged the fact that we learned mathematics and astronomy, the science of logic, philosophy, arts and culture and administrative organisation from different civilisations through reading.
